

SIPA at Books & Books

School of International and Public Affairs

The Politics of Disaster Tracking the Impact of Hurricane Andrew Book Presentation by David K. Twigg

August 7, 2012 | 8:00 PM | Books & Books, 265 Aragon Avenue, Coral Gables

From earthquakes to tornados, elected officials' responses to natural disasters can leave an indelible mark on their political careers. In the midst of the 1992 primary season, Hurricane Andrew overwhelmed South Florida, requiring local, state, and federal emergency responses. The work of many politicians in the storm's immediate aftermath led to a curious "incumbency advantage" in the general election a few weeks later, raising the question of just how much the disaster provided opportunities to effectively "campaign without campaigning." David Twigg explores the impact of Hurricane Andrew on local and state political incumbents, revealing how elected officials adjusted their strategies and activities in the wake of the disaster. Not only did Andrew give them a legitimate and necessary opportunity to enhance their constituency service and associate themselves with the flow of external assistance, but it also allowed them to achieve significant personal visibility and media coverage while appearing to be non-political or above "normal" politics. This engrossing case study clearly demonstrates why natural disasters often privilege incumbents.

David K. Twigg is Director of the Jack D. Gordon Institute for Public Policy and Citizenship Studies, School of International and Public Affairs, Florida International University.

Co-sponsored by the Jack D. Gordon Institute for Public Policy and Citizenship Studies

This event is free and open to the public. For more information, please call 305-348-7266.